“Certificate Course in Human Right and Professional Ethics”

Academic year: 2021-22

INTRODUCTION:

➤ WHAT ARE HUMAN RIGHTS?

Human rights are rights inherent to all human beings, regardless of race, sex, nationality, ethnicity, language, religion, or any other status. Human rights include the right to life and liberty, freedom from slavery and torture, freedom of opinion and expression, the right to work and education, and many more. Everyone is entitled to these rights, without discrimination.

➤ INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS LAW

International human rights law lays down the obligations of Governments to act in certain ways or to refrain from certain acts, in order to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms of individuals or groups.

One of the great achievements of the United Nations is the creation of a comprehensive body of human rights law—a universal and internationally protected code to which all nations can subscribe and all people aspire. The United Nations has defined a broad range of internationally accepted rights, including civil, cultural, economic, political and social rights. It has also established mechanisms to promote and protect these rights and to assist states in carrying out their responsibilities.

In conclusion, professional ethics is a critical component of any profession. It is based on a set of moral and ethical principles that guide professionals in their conduct and decision-making processes. By adhering to these principles, professionals can build trust and credibility with their clients, colleagues, and the wider community, and maintain the integrity of their profession.

6. RIGHT TO CONSTITUTIONAL REMEDIES (32 – 35)

The Constitution guarantees remedies if citizens' fundamental rights are violated. The government cannot infringe upon or curb anyone's rights. When these rights are violated, the aggrieved party can approach the courts. Citizens can even go directly to the Supreme Court which can issue writs for enforcing fundamental rights.

➤ FEATURES OF FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS

Fundamental rights are different from ordinary legal rights in the manner in which they are enforced. If a legal right is violated, the aggrieved person cannot directly approach the SC bypassing the lower courts. He or she should first approach the lower courts. Some of the fundamental rights are available to all citizens while the rest are for all persons (citizens and foreigners). Fundamental rights are not absolute rights. They have a reasonable restriction, which means they are subject to the conditions of state security, public morality decency and friendly relations with foreign countries. They are justiciable, implying they are enforceable by courts. People can approach the SC directly in case of violation of fundamental rights. Fundamental rights can be amended by the Parliament by a constitutional amendment but only if the amendment does not alter the basic structure of the Constitution.

The Fundamental rights of Indian constitution can be suspended during a national emergency. But the rights guaranteed under Articles 20 and 21 cannot be suspended. The application of fundamental rights can be restricted in an area that has been placed under martial law or military rule. Fundamental Rights Available Only to Citizens The following is the list of fundamental rights the in Indian constitutions that are available only to citizens (and not to foreigners):

- A. Prohibition of discrimination on grounds of race, religion, caste, age, gender or place of birth (Article 15).
- B. Equality of opportunity in matters of public employment (Article 16).
- C. Protection of freedom of: (Article 19)
 - 1. Speech and expression
 - 2. Association
 - 3. Assembly
 - 4. Movement
 - 5. Residence
 - 6. Profession

individuals and provide them with a sense of security and equality. On the other hand, fundamental duties are moral and ethical obligations expected of citizens towards their country and fellow citizens.

Enforcement: Fundamental rights are enforceable through the courts of law. If an individual's fundamental rights are violated, they can seek legal recourse and the courts can provide appropriate remedies. However, fundamental duties are not enforceable in the same way. While citizens are expected to fulfill their fundamental duties, there are no legal sanctions if they fail to do so.

Goal: The focus of fundamental rights is on protecting the interests of individuals and ensuring their well-being. Fundamental duties, on the other hand, are focused on promoting the collective good and ensuring that citizens contribute to the welfare of their country.

➤ CONCLUSION

To know how many fundamental rights are there in the Indian Constitution is a must-rule for a Political Science aspirant. The list of fundamental rights given above will be helpful for the candidates in their Political Science study. Also, aspirants should know the difference between human rights and fundamental rights. The basic difference between human rights and fundamental rights is the scope of acceptance. While fundamental rights have scope within a country, human rights are accepted worldwide.

The Fundamental Rights are enshrined in Part-III of the Constitution from Articles 12 to 35. At present, there are six Fundamental Rights. The fundamental rights were included in the constitution because they were considered essential for the development of the personality of every individual and to preserve human dignity. All people, irrespective of race, religion, caste or sex, have been given the right to move the Supreme Court and the High Courts for the enforcement of their fundamental rights.

➤ ACADEMIC NEED FOR PROPOSED CERTIFICATE COURSE:

We are launching a certificate course called "Certificate Course in Fundamental Rights" under the Department of Political Science in the College. The Department of Political Science played an important role from launching to completing this certificate Following are some objectives which direct how this course will be educationally useful for the.

➤ OBJECTIVES OF THE COURSE:

1. Explain the concept of Fundamental Rights in detail.
2. To brief the students on the Fundamental Rights in Indian Constitution

Certificate course in Electronic Equipment Repairing and Maintenance (CEERM)

Objectives of the Course-

This course aims at making the students introduced to the working of electronic equipments used in physics lab, at home also at Social places.

The desired knowledge and skill levels to be taught

To create awareness towards consumption of energy and its conservation

To Testing, Rectifying/Repairing and Maintenance of these equipment's.

To create awareness about fundamentals and related applications of electricity

To acquire knowledge about Electrical Instruments about their working and their applications

Outcomes-

On completion of the Course student able to:

To acquire knowledge about tools, equipment and Instruments required for different types of wiring systems & testing.

To acquire skills in assembly, repair, installation, testing and maintenance of domestic appliances.

Relate their knowledge and skills in carrying out independent work.

To acquire knowledge and skills in Power supply systems like Inverter, Solar Power ,UPS, etc.,

At the end of the course, the participant shall be able to identify the fault, repair and do maintenance of electronic equipment's.

Expected Job roles, skills, Career/Proposed Occupation-

Electronics Technician, Technical Support engineer, technical assistant, Maintenance engineer, Repair engineer,
